Comment Of The Day

OLYMPIC POLITICS

THE International Olympic Committee is carrying their campaign against Nationalist China to an unnecessarily harsh extreme by insisting that they drop the word "China" entirely from their official title. The controversy has aroused widespread interest. East-West wrangles usually do, but when they occur in an environment where they are least expected they acquire even greater prominence.

The spectacle of an international sporting body with a long tradition of neutrality and impartiality involving itself in a political issue of this kind is both disagreeable and extremely regrettable. There was a good deal of feeling over the Nationalists' prior claim to represent the whole of China and the Olympic Committee were right to insist on a change.

Open To All

PEKING has in the past indicated that it has no intention of participating as long as Taipei is represented so it is difficult to see what difference a change of name is going to mean to the 1960 Games. The Nationalists' most flagrant claim has been cut down to size, however, and the Olympic Committee has no right to insist on anything more.

The Nationalists have little left today but a name and an island. But they are commonly known as "the Nationalists" and to deny them the right to be called by their historical title of the Republic of China is finicky and dictatorial. Clearly the Nationalists are not "Formosans" though their Government is established there, nor are they the "Formosan Government" but the Nationalist Chinese Government on Formosa.

The problem posed by nations split by Communist occupation is undoubtedly a difficult one for the IOC. To be truly neutral two courses are open: to exclude all such states, or to admit them all. The better course would undoubtedly be the latter. International sports should provide a common meeting ground for peoples of all nations whatever their political persuasions. And it should strongly resist any move aimed at excluding a country whatever the pretext.

No Blacks

THERE is one other consideration: some South Africans would like to have coloured people excluded from the Games. It seems an outrageous request, but then they are not asking much more than the Communist countries who are said to be behind the IOC decision to exclude the Chinese on Formosa. If the IOC is going to play favourites with one group, where is this kind of thing going to end? The Olympic authorities must make it clear that the Games are open to all countries and to all eligible athletes whatever their race or political belief. And that if any sanctions are going to be taken they will be against those who try to defeat the spirit of impartiality and neutrality in which the Games are, or should be, organised and conducted.

8-YEAR BATTLE FOR A NAME

London, June 10. Just plain Francis Dighton Annesley became the 14th Viscount Valentia today thanks to his great-great-great-grandfather (five greats).

The former army doctor's eight-year battle to claim the title ended in victory when the Lord Chancellor duly announced the fact in the House of Lords. But Annesley's proving he was the true heir of his great-great-great-great-great-grandfather (six greats) had been required by a higher authority than the mere House of Lords.

DEBRETT'S Peerage, a thick red book that is the bible of ancient and honourable titles, had to be shown what's in a name.

Annesley first claimed the title in 1951 when his 71-year-old cousin, the 13th Viscount of Valentia, died.

DEBRETT'S refused to recognise Annesley as the true heir. In fact, it said no claim to succeed to the title for that title since the ninth Viscount died in 1844.

That meant Annesley had to go all the way back to the beginning of the title in 1822, and prove his claim through the centuries.—UPI.

Mystery Surrounds Guards' Headwear

Montreal, June 10. The much publicised bear-skins for the Guards at Buckingham Palace were surrounded with a cloak and dagger atmosphere today.

Mayor Leo Del Villano of Timmins, Ontario, who originated the idea to replace the present "moth-eaten" headgear of the Guards with new bear-skins from northern Ontario, said today there were six "skins" stacked away in a top secret hiding place in Montreal. He said they were awaiting pickup by Lt. Col. P. E. L. Carmichael, of the British Ministry of Supply stationed in Ottawa.

Leo Del Villano said the British official had asked him to keep the location of the bear-skins a secret. He said the skins weigh between 150 and 400 pounds.

The Timmins Mayor said 50 more skins would soon arrive here for shipment to England. Carmichael could not be reached for comment in Ottawa.—UPI.

Non-Intervention

London, June 10. John Profumo, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, said today Britain had no plans to intervene in the question of free passage of Israeli troops through the Suez Canal. He told the House of Commons that the matter was "being discussed through United Nations channels and I do not think it would be helpful to intervene."—UPI.

West Decides Not To Break Off Meeting

Washington, June 10. President Eisenhower is standing by his refusal to attend an East-West summit meeting unless the Geneva Foreign Ministers' conference reaffirms allied rights in West Berlin, United States officials said today.

Officials reported that President Eisenhower was in daily contact with Mr. Christian Herter, the Secretary of State, in Geneva.

Fonteyn's Husband To Leave Panama

London, June 11. Dame Margot Fonteyn, the British ballerina, is quoted today as saying that she hopes her husband, Dr. Roberto Arias, will be able to leave the sanctuary of the Brazilian Embassy in Panama soon.

Dr. Arias has been in the Embassy since being accused in May of plotting to overthrow the Panamanian regime.

Newspapers quote Dame Margot as saying: "I expect to hear something concrete within the next few days."

Under Duress

Western delegates feel it is impossible to continue negotiations under the shadow of the Soviet proposal, as it means they would be talking under duress—though the Russians deny any element of ultimatum.

A three-fold threat was seen by Western delegates—in the one year time limit for the liquidation of occupation rights, in the possible denial of free access to West Berlin after one year, and in the possibility that the Soviet Union would sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany after one year.—Reuter.

Aga Khan Gets His Degree

Cambridge, Mass., June 11. The Aga Khan, spiritual leader of 23 million Moslems, will conclude his formal education in the United States tomorrow when he graduates from Harvard University.

He will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree with honours.

The University announced that the Aga Khan had established a $50,000 scholarship fund to help students from India, Pakistan, Iran and the countries of the Middle East and East Africa.

A university spokesman said originally that the Aga Khan was to graduate today but the ceremonies were limited to law school students and the main graduation ceremonies will take place tomorrow.—Reuter.

CYCLONE HITS SINGAPORE

Singapore, June 11. A 50-mile an-hour cyclone tore through Singapore last night, partly wrecking a sports stadium and uprooting trees and advertising boardings.—Reuter.

Spaceman Accidentally 'Roasted'

Washington, June 10. A volunteer in "the American-man-into space" programme underwent several hours of "roasting" in a high flying balloon due to scientists' miscalculations—and survived, United States Air Force research scientist Dr. Knox Millsaps disclosed here today.

Dr. Millsaps who was reporting to a Senate subcommittee on the Air Force space programme said the volunteer, 28-year-old Lieutenant Clifton McClure, was sent up to a height of over 24,000 metres in a pressurised gondola cooled by artificial ice.

But, Dr. Millsaps said, something went wrong. The scientists' calculations on temperatures and heat insulation must have gone awry and the unfortunate volunteer was obliged for several hours to endure temperatures of 150° to 180° degrees Fahrenheit. He was completely dehydrated when he came down and was rushed to hospital where he was reported to have recovered. He is still a volunteer for high altitude flying.

His ordeal, Dr. Millsaps said, had provided valuable information which had immediately been put to good use for the training of future space astronauts.—AFP.

Gaoled PAP Men Freed

Eight members of the People's Action Party, victors of the recent Singapore elections, who had been arrested by the previous government of Lim Yew-hock, were released from Changi gaol when the PAP came to power.

Spokesman C. V. Devan Nair, a Singapore-born Indian, said: "We have never condoned violence in the past and never will. We have not been angels of rectitude in the past but neither has the past government."

They emphasised that they intended to help work peacefully towards establishing a non-Communist Malaysian state, and that they considered violent revolution to be both wrong and impracticable, though of course they are still aiming at socialism for the entire peninsula.—The Times Photo.

TAX RELIEF FOR UK CINEMAS

London, June 10. British cinemas are to get tax relief of £2,500,000, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Derick Heathcoat-Amory, told the House of Commons tonight.

Members of all parties had urged him to reduce the entertainment tax on cinemas because they were finding it hard to make a profit.

Last year, there was a drop of 150 million attendances compared with 1957, the House was told, and box office takings dropped £10 million. Eight hundred cinemas were stated to have been closed in the last five years.

SOCIAL HABITS

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory said the decline in cinema-going was a change of social habits and more cinemas would no doubt have to close.

But the social implications were serious for rural areas which often had only one cinema. He therefore proposed to reduce the tax by £2,500,000 in a full year, which is about 25 per cent of the full tax.

He announced this during a debate on the finance bill, which puts last April's budget proposals into legal form.—Reuter.

Hull To Visit Indonesia

Singapore, June 11. Commander-in-Chief of the British Land Forces, General Sir Richard Hull, will pay a one-week visit to Indonesia early next month.—Reuter.

UK NEWSPAPERS CLAIM

MACMILLAN WAS THE SOURCE

London, June 11. Two British newspaper columnists today suggested that Mr. Harold Macmillan, the Prime Minister, was himself the source of the recent controversial London Times article which suggested that Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, Foreign Secretary, might be moved to another job.

Mr. Michael Foot writing in the Daily Herald (Labour) said: "Sir William Haley (The Times Editor) now says that he would not alter nor withdraw one word of the offending article."

Tote-A-Tote

"In other words he is saying that Macmillan had talked to Selwyn Lloyd that he had told his Foreign Secretary 'enough is enough'."

"Only two people could have leaked that information from that intimate tete-a-tete, Mr. Selwyn Lloyd was hardly likely to do so. And that leaves only one other—Macmillan himself."

Mr. Foot said, "Macmillan is now on the spot. He has to face a most serious charge made against him by Sir William a man whose personal honour has never been questioned."

"If Mr. Harold Macmillan now prepared without any further shifts and quibbles to deny Sir William's charge? And if not, why not?"

Mr. Robin Day writing in the Liberal News Chronicle said Sir William had indicated complete confidence that the original report was true and came from an unimpeachable source.

Pointing out that Mr. Macmillan had never publicly denied that he told Mr. Lloyd there should be a change at the Foreign Office, Mr. Day questioned the Prime Minister's motive.

"There is one very simple and plausible explanation—and one which implies no malice in the Prime Minister. This explanation could be that the Prime Minister genuinely wants to give Mr. Lloyd a rest from the heavy grind at the Foreign Office and wishes this to be known, now, so that when the change is made it will not seem to be because the Geneva conference has failed."—Reuter.

Govt Wins

Kuala Lumpur, June 11. The Malayan Government today won the Johore state elections by a big majority.

Final results gave the ruling Alliance 28 of the 32 seats. Socialist Front won 3 seats and Independents won 1.—Reuter.

Cut Girl's Ear Off

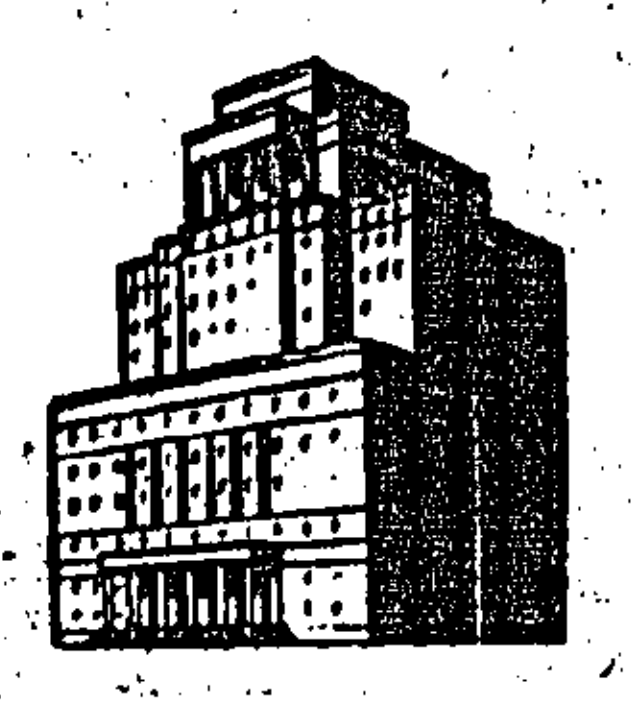

Manila, June 11. A group of armed men cut off the right ear of a 19-year-old girl whose family was suspected of practising witchcraft, the constabulary reported today.

The constabulary said the men broke into the house of the girl's family in Santa Maria, Bulacan, 25 miles from here and struck her father, Jose Nicolas and her mother Ann, with revolvers, before attacking the girl.

The girl, Maria Nicolas, and her mother are confined at the provincial hospital where they were both pronounced in serious condition.

Four suspects have been arrested, the constabulary said.—UPI.

Laos Should Be Left In

Peace Tie United States And Canada To Atlantic Community

London, June 10.
Mr. John Profumo, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, said today that Laos had been peacefully ordering its own affairs and "should be left in peace to do so."

Mr. Anurin Bevan, Labour's foreign affairs spokesman, had questioned him in the House of Commons about representations from the Indian Government for the reconvening of the international supervisory commission for Laos.

Points Made
Mr. Profumo made the following points about Britain's latest note to Russia on Laos handed over in Geneva yesterday by Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, the British Foreign Secretary.

1. It is not true that the Government of Laos have in any way disregarded the Geneva agreements. On the contrary it had always observed them and had been making "a genuine effort" to integrate a Pathet Lao (pro-Communist) battalion into its army under the 1957 agreement made with the Pathet Lao.

2. "Laos is a sovereign, independent state and a member of the United Nations. It would be inconsistent with the undertaking to respect its sovereignty contained in the final declaration of the Geneva conference to seek to impose the return of the international commission on the Laotian Government against their wishes."

3. "The co-chairmen of the Geneva conference are not in a position to issue directions to the international commission in this matter. If the co-chairmen were agreed (which unfortunately they are not) they could express their joint views."

Reuter.

London, June 10.
A citizens' congress representing 14 Nato nations closed today after drafting a blueprint for a new Atlantic community tied to the United States and Canada.

Condition Of Land Company's China Assets Unknown

Mr. Horace Kadoorie, Chairman of the Shanghai Land Investment Company Ltd., said this morning at the 65th Annual General Meeting of shareholders in Marina House that he had nothing to add to the statement circulated. This announced that there is no information as to the condition of the company's assets in China.

Shareholders representing 305,000 shares were present. They adopted the directors' report and statement of accounts on a proposal by Mr. Kadoorie, seconded by Mr. W. A. Welch.

Mr. Kadoorie was re-elected a director on a proposal put by Mr. H. R. H. Cleland, seconded by Mr. J. Grant. Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews were appointed auditors.

GRAHAM HAS TEA WITH THE QUEEN

London, June 10.
Dr Billy Graham, the 40-year-old American evangelist, and his wife had tea with the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, at Buckingham Palace this evening.

It was a special occasion, too, for the royal family—the Duke's 38th birthday. The invitation was kept a close secret and news of the tea party did not leak out until late tonight.

Moscow Visit

Dr Graham last met the Queen in 1955 when he preached before members of the royal family at Windsor. The evangelist arrived in London from Australia last Saturday on a private visit and is expected to leave again for Moscow tomorrow.

In Russia he will meet church leaders to "put over the American point of view."

"I didn't know it was Prince Philip's birthday until I read about it in the newspapers. That made it even more an especial honour."

"I thought the Queen looked very beautiful. In fact I think she is one of the loveliest women in the world—even more beautiful than the last time I saw her in 1955 when I preached to her at Windsor."

Religion

"It was a really good English tea—plenty of sandwiches and cakes and tea out of very large cups."

Dr Graham said that while the Queen handed round the plates and poured tea they talked mainly about religion.

He added: "I told the Queen and Prince Philip about my Australian visit and the true religious revival taking place there."—Reuters.

THREE-WAY CHALLENGE

Denmark's three-pronged challenge to the beauties of Europe and the world consists of Kirsten Olsen (left), Lis Stober, and Nette Terp (right).

After the Miss Denmark competition, won by Lis, when this picture was taken, it was announced that they will each go on to higher contests — Lis to Florida for the Miss Universe contest, Nette (who came second) to Sicily for the Miss Europe competition, and Kirsten (who was third) to London to challenge for the Miss World title.—Express Photo.

CASSANDRA TELLS WHAT HE MEANT

Cicely Courtneidge Says: "Nothing Dirty"

London, June 10.
Journalist William Connor, 50,—"Cassandra" of the Daily Mirror—explained in the High Court today the precise meaning of each of the adjectives he used to describe Liberace.

Trial Of 4 Youths For Rape Begins

Tallahassee, June 10.
The trial of four white youths accused of raping a 19-year-old Negro college co-ed began quietly today in what was billed as a demonstration that Florida has "no double standard of justice."

The 114-year-old courthouse where the dramatic case began unfolding was packed with Negro spectators.

The unidentified alleged victim of the assault was not present but is expected to testify later.

The white defendants, who were led handcuffed into the courtroom, could get death in the electric chair if convicted without a recommendation of mercy from the jury.

But no white man ever has paid the supreme penalty in Florida for raping a Negro. An all-male, all-white jury was picked to try the four youths.

Forty-one prospective jurors were dismissed before the 12-man panel was finally approved by both the State and the defence.—UPI.

The Queen Will Have No Free Time In Chicago

Chicago, June 10.
The Queen and Prince Philip will follow a tight itinerary that will leave them hardly any free time during their visit to Chicago on July 6.

Chicago is the only American city the royal couple will visit during their summer tour. In the Mayor, Mr. Richard Daley, said today he had turned down requests from hundreds of individuals and organizations.

In Toronto today, the Queen and Prince Philip disclosed that it will cost the Toronto Harbour Commission $400 to dock the royal yacht, Britannia, when she arrives during the royal tour.

A Harbour Commission spokesman said the Britannia would not touch docks. Floating between her and the dock will be two wooden buffers called catamarans, designed to protect the Britannia's egg-shell paint.—Router.

Moon Eruption May Be True, Says American

San Diego, June 10.
Nobel prize winner Dr Harold Urey said last night there is a "good possibility" that a Russian report of an eruption on the moon is true.

Bottle Or Draught Election

London, June 10.
Millions of beer drinkers throughout Britain will be asked to take part in a nationwide "election" this year to decide whether draught or bottled beer is the "best long drink in the world."

The "election" has been sponsored by the Brewers' Society as part of a national advertising campaign to publicize beer.

At present, British consumers consume 540,000,000 gallons of draught beer and 360,000,000 gallons of bottled beer annually.—China Mail Special.

Death Sentence

Cairo, June 10.
The Baghdad Military Court today sentenced four Iraqi officers accused of having taken part in the abortive Mosul revolt.

Five other officers were sentenced to hard labour for life.—AP.

Help For Tibetans

New York, June 10.
Four thousand pounds of antibiotics, anti-histamines and vitamins for Tibetan refugees in India left New York's Idlewild Airport today for New Delhi.

The shipment was supplied by American Emergency Committee for Tibetan Refugees.—UPI.

Old Faithful

Because there was no air, Urey said, the water probably was spouted far into space. He likened the eruption to the action of Old Faithful geyser at Yellowstone National Park.

"I think there is a pretty good possibility that Russia's Kosaroff might have seen a genuine eruption on the moon," Urey said.

The famous scientist, speaking before the American Rocket Society, said the United States is not doing enough in the investigation of meteorites.

"They (meteorites) come to us free of charge," he said. "Yet proper chemical analysis has not been made in many cases."

Urey theorized that some of the meteorites might come from the moon. He said they possibly provided a valuable source of information about the moon's surface.

How did meteorites get from the moon to the earth? Urey suggested that chunks of the moon could have been knocked off by dark comets unseen by man because they have no light.

He declined to predict when man might reach the moon, but he said instruments should be landed on it in the next few years.—UPI.

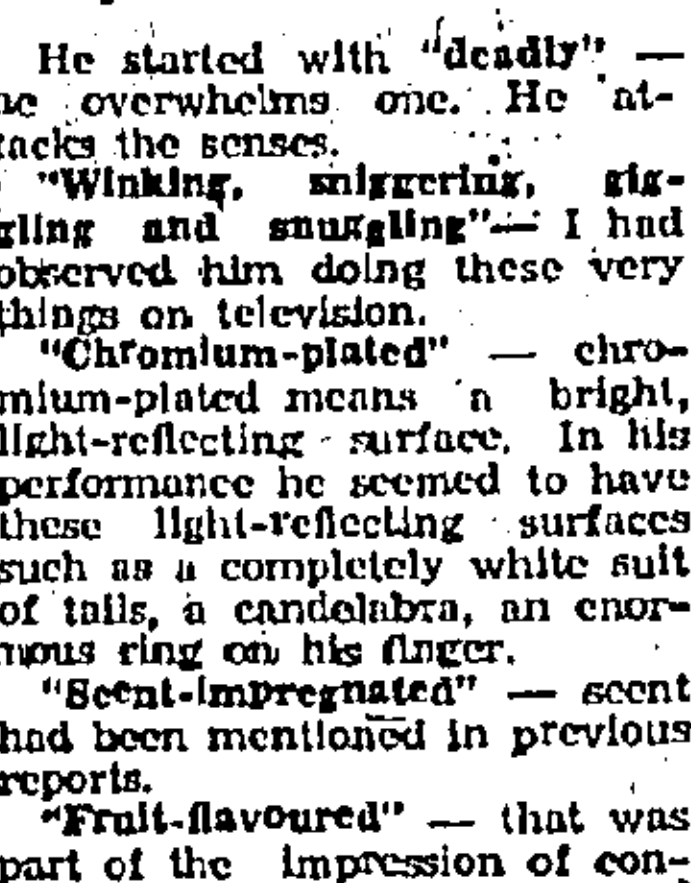

Man Hangs From 14th Storey Ledge

New York, June 10.
For five agonizing minutes today a man dangled from a 14th floor window ledge at Macy's department store.

A woman below who saw him screamed. Another passerby who heard her screams turned in a fire alarm.

By the time four fire pumps, two hook and ladder trucks and two police emergency squads arrived, the man had been safely pulled from the ledge.

Macy's spokesman for a clothing company, had been directing two workmen on the street who

Cassandra

The name "Cassandra" was chosen by the editor.

"He is a very serious man," said Mr. Gardner, "taking a slightly gloomy view of life, very conscious of all the cruelties and sufferings of the world which he is anxious to put right."—China Mail Special.

Nothing Dirty

First witness today was actress Cicely Courtneidge, who said she had seen Liberace perform but saw or heard nothing dirty or suggestive in his show.

The next witness, Miss Helen Gerdell, said she was a director of a club and had appeared on television films, and the stage in American and Europe.

Liberace used her club for his press reception when he arrived in England in 1958.

Asked if she thought an artist with sex appeal was entitled to use it, Miss Gerdell said: "Yes, up to a certain point, but I do not think Liberace does so."

Robert Monkhouse, theatrical artist, said in evidence he gave an impression of Liberace as part of a cabaret show.

He had seen Liberace's performance and there was nothing suggestive, improper, sexy, or to stimulate the sexual appetite in it.

Mr. Gilbert Beufus, Q.C. (for Liberace), said that subject to interpreting the musician, Mantovani, as a witness at a later stage, his case was closed.

Mr. Gardner, (for the defence), said the defence of fair comment was the only reason why there was free speech in this country.

It was not a special right of newspapers but it was everyone's right to say what they thought on any matter of public interest.

The jury had not to decide whether they agreed with what Cassandra had said, but whether he held that opinion honestly.

Mr. Connor, counsel continued, was educated at ordinary primary and secondary schools. After three or four jobs he found he could not help writing and joined an advertising agency.

When he was about 26 he joined the Daily Mirror and shortly afterwards started his daily column.

Bees Storm New York Post Office

New York, June 10.
Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night... reads the inscription on the New York Post Office. Last night they added bees.

Two hundred invading insects crept into the Post Office's Grand Central annex from one of 10 cases of bees en route from South Carolina to Gasport, New York.

Three postal employees and three employees of the New York Central Railroad were stung as they attacked.

New York police declined to enter the federal portals to join the fray, a Post Office spokesman said.

The bees were swatted. The other nine cases, destined for a 7 p.m. train to Gasport, went on their way, somewhat delayed.—UPI.

U.S. Goods To Poland

Washington, June 10.
The United States has agreed to ship Poland $50,000,000 worth of surplus farm products and polio vaccine, it was announced today.—UPI.

Brundage Clarifies IOC Decision

NATIONALIST CHINA MAY COMPETE IN NEXT WINTER GAMES BUT NOT CHINA

Lausanne, June 10. International Olympic Committee President Avery Brundage said today his organization will find a solution to assure Nationalist Chinese participation in the 1960 winter Olympics in Squaw Valley, California.

At the same time, Brundage said that China will "definitely not" be allowed to compete in the winter Games. "A solution will be found so that the Nationalist Chinese will be among the countries sending athletes to Squaw Valley," Brundage said in an exclusive interview with United Press International.

Brundage's comment was his first since he left Olympic headquarters here a week ago to set away from a worldwide Olympic controversy. It was started by the IOC's decision to withdraw recognition from the National Chinese Olympic Committee on February 10 on grounds that it did not control sports in the entire territory of China.

Not Expelled

Brundage said China was not expelled from the IOC, he said. "We simply withdrew recognition from the National Chinese Olympic Committee," he said. "The IOC has asked the Nationalist Chinese to withdraw from the Olympic Committee and replace it by 'Formosa' or something such like," Brundage said.

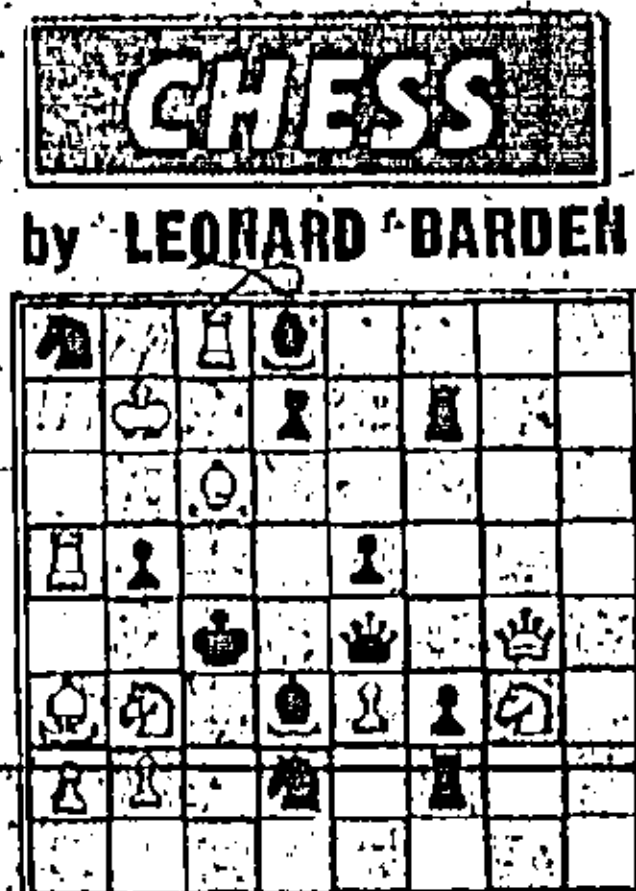

Mail Vote

As soon as they do this, the application for readmission will be put to IOC members for a mail vote to that recognition will be restored before the Olympic Games. Brundage said. "But," he added, "if it refuses to do so, this still does not mean that Nationalist Chinese athletes are barred from the Games."

U.S. Basketball To Play In HK

San Francisco, June 10. The University of San Francisco basketball team, accompanied by head coach Phil Woelfel, will leave here Friday for a month-long tour of the Orient.

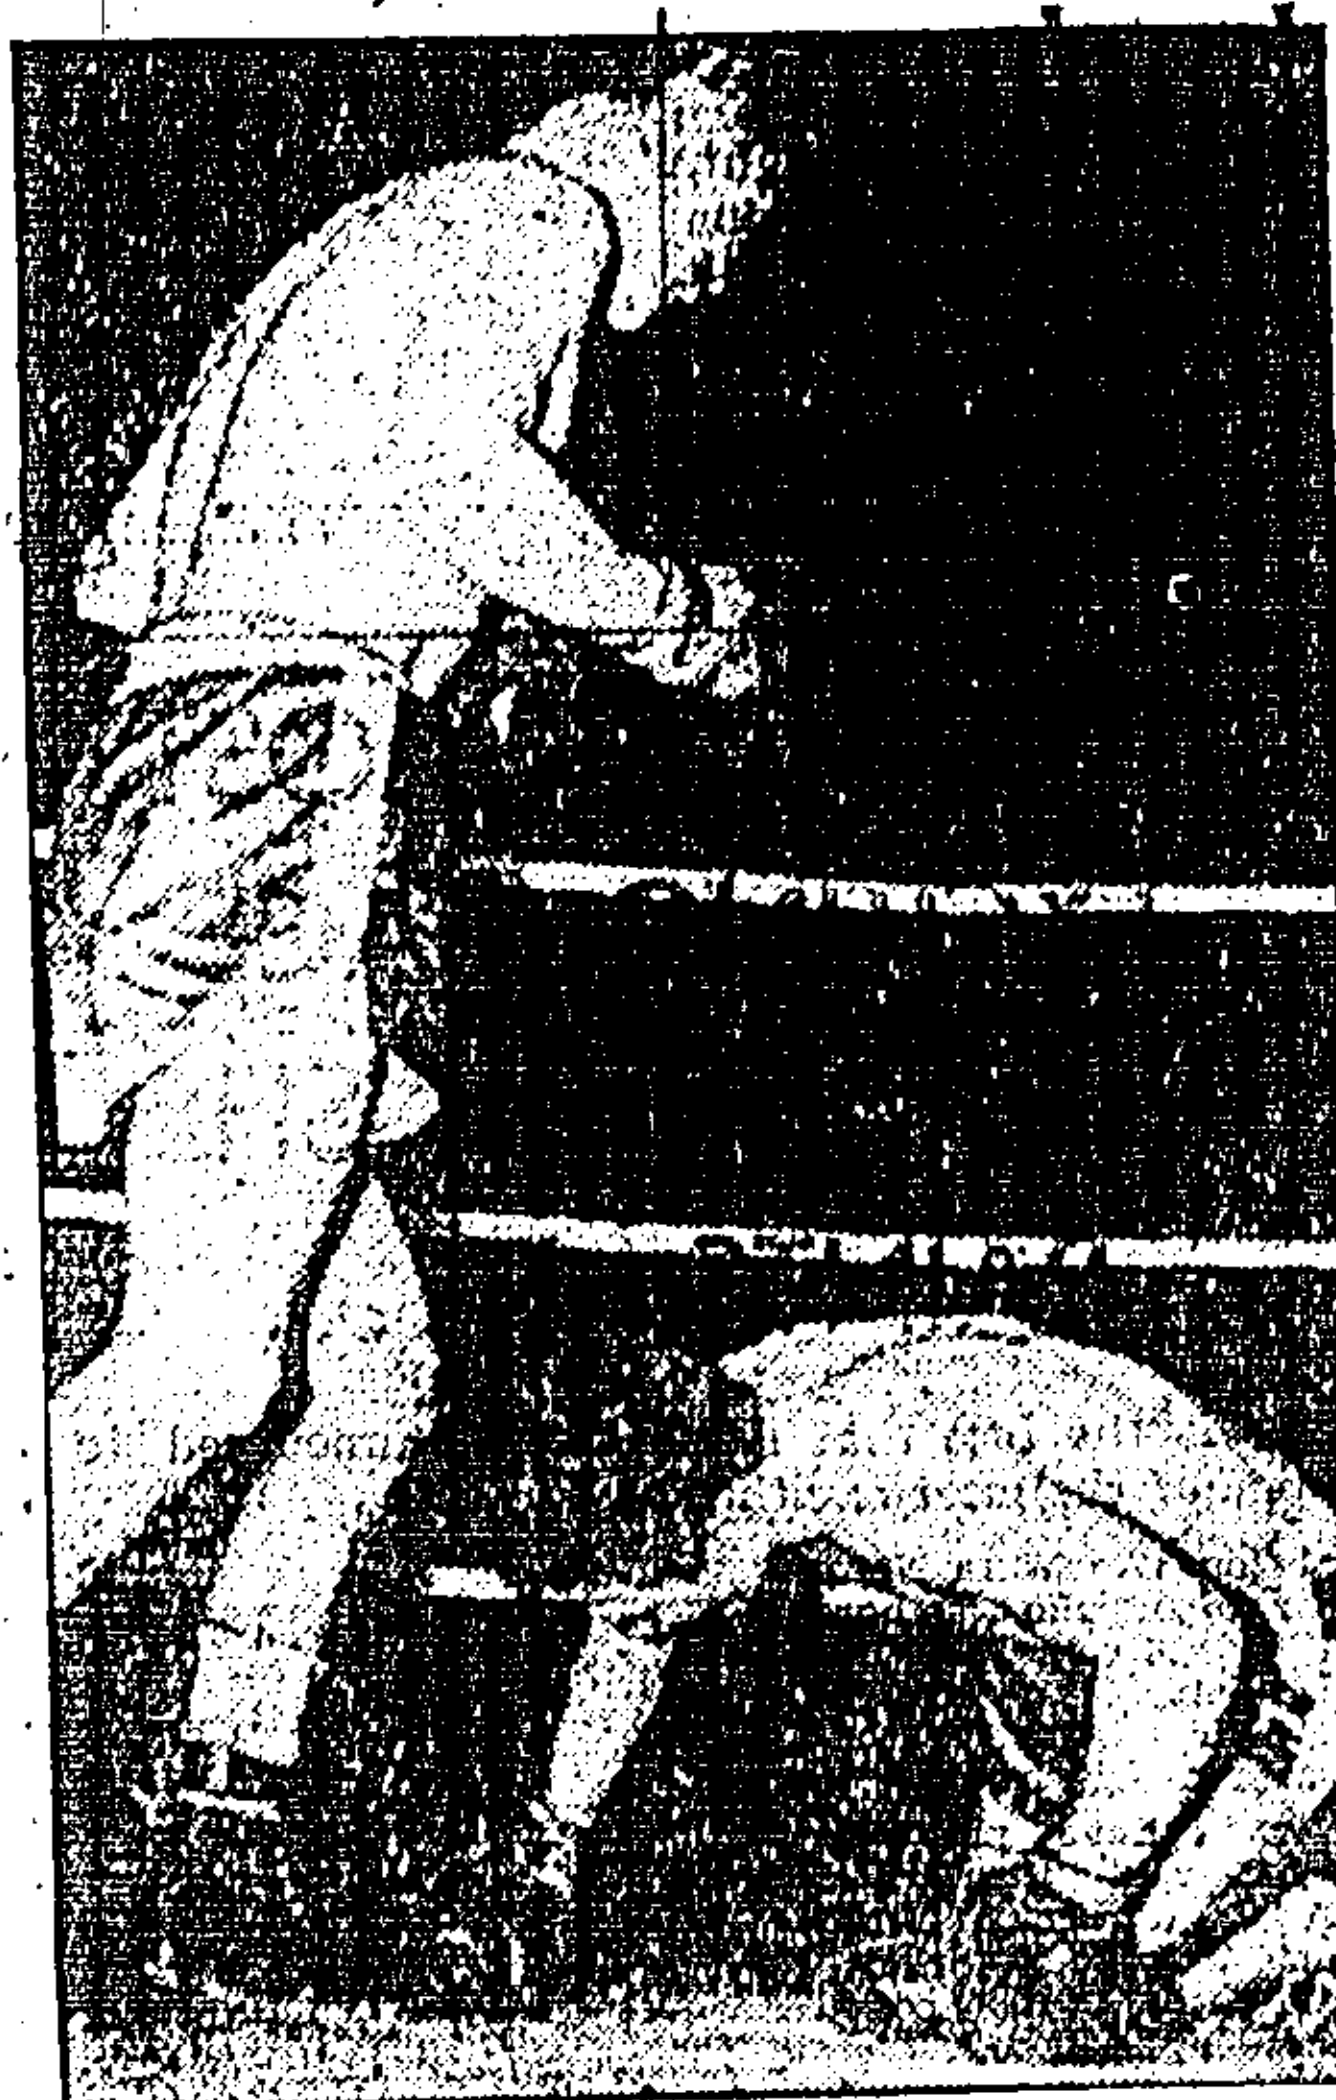

The team will play 17 games in the Philippines and also have several games listed in Hong Kong and Tokyo. —UPI.

Surprise Victory

Bobby Neill, the British featherweight champion, scored a surprise knock-out victory over Terry Spinks at Wembley Pool last week. Spinks had out-boxed Neill so completely up to the moment of the knock-out at the end of the ninth round that it seemed impossible for him to be beaten.

Indian Captain Gets His First Century In England Tour

London, June 10. Datta Gaekwad, the Indian captain, made his first century of the tour on an occasion when it was badly needed.

Against the Minor Counties at Longton, Stoke-on-Trent, the touring team made an unbelievably bad start. Arvind Apté scored his first and only run of the tour and with 12 on the board, the Test opening pair Pantak Roy and Nar Contractor joined him in the pavilion.

All fell victims to lively bowling on a pitch which offered slight help and in an atmosphere which aided swing considerably.

When Kripal Singh left at 45 the Indians looked well along the run to disaster, but Yashasinh Ghosh and M. L. Jasimha pulled them round with a stand of 72. Ghoshade needed a lot of luck but he drove the ball hard enough to deserve it.

Dominated

Gaekwad went in when the fifth wicket fell at 117 and from then on this slight dapper figure dominated the game. Jasimha offered useful support in a stand of 64 and Narendra Tamhane stayed while 61 were added.

Gaekwad's most profitable stroke was the square-cut but he gave the field no chance even though leg-spinner Atkinson grouped five men between cover and third man.

When Tamhane left, Gaekwad was 21 short of his century, but with the tail for partners he hit away merrily. He reached double figures after two-and-a-half hours and was last out to a catch in the deep. India made 287.

Minor Counties made a better start than India, but only

CHINESE TEAM TO PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

Peking, June 10. A Chinese team of three players, left for London yesterday to take part in the annual Wimbledon International Lawn Tennis Championships beginning on June 20, Peking Radio reported tonight.

This is China's second entry in Wimbledon since 1949. It entered for the first time last year.

The three Chinese players are Chu Chen-hua and Mei Fu-chi, champion and runner-up in the 1958 national championships, and Tai Yang-ming, a newcomer to the tennis scene. They are accompanied by team leader, Kuo Kung-ho.

The Chinese team will visit Hungary, Rumania and Poland after the fortnight in Wimbledon. —AFP.

Britain's Davis Cup Chances Best In 22 Years This Time Says Fred Perry

Fred Perry, former Wimbledon champion, wrote in a newspaper article published here today that Britain had a better chance of winning the Davis Cup International tennis competition this year than it had ever had since losing the coveted trophy to the United States 22 years ago.

Perry, writing in the London "Evening News," forecast that "Britain would score a glass win over Chile in their quarter-final European zone tie which begins at Eastbourne tomorrow. If this forecast proves correct, Britain will meet the winner of the Spain-Brazil match in the semi-finals and according to Perry should win this match.

ENGLISH COUNTY CRICKET Doug Insole Scores Magnificent 180 For Essex Against Notts

London, June 10. Doug Insole, the Essex captain whose team are currently joint leaders in the championship table, scored a magnificent 180 with 24 boundaries in his team's 396 after he had been put into bat by Nottinghamshire at Rotherham today.

Insole, who batted three hours 20 minutes, was dropped at 17. He scored 159 of a fourth wicket stand of 196 made with Trevor Bailey, who batted only five minutes less than his captain to finish with 48.

Middlesex, joint leaders with Essex, bowled out Worcestershire for 145 on a green pitch at Lords.

Fast bowler Alan Moss, back from test match duty, took six for 47, and only Ron Headley—son of famous West Indian George Headley—with 10 not out showed much resistance.

Excels

Another batsman to excel was William Richardson, 21-year-old left-arm amateur, enjoying his first season with Derbyshire. Two spells at Chesterfield wrecked Kent, Richardson finishing with eight for 54 in Kent's total of 170.

Alan Watkins hit a fighting century for Gloucestershire against Lancashire at Taunton yesterday. When the eighth wicket fell Watkins was only 54 but wicket-keeper David Evans stayed for 75 minutes and Watkins reached three figures with the last man in. He batted three hours for his 100 not out, hitting 17 fours.

COLAVITO HITS FOUR HOME RUNS IN FOUR SUCCESSIVE TIMES AT BAT

Second Man In Modern Baseball History To Achieve The Feat

Baltimore, June 10. Rocky Colavito became the second man in modern baseball history ever to score four home runs in four consecutive times at bat when he paced the Cleveland Indians to an 11-8 victory over the Baltimore Orioles tonight.

Only other Major League ever to accomplish the feat in modern history was Lou Gehrig of the Yankees who did it in 1922. Bobby Lowe of the Boston Nationals also hit four homers in as many times at bat during a single game in 1894.

Colavito, who increased his season's home run total to 18, hit three of his four homers on different pitchers in driving in six runs.

He connected off loser Jerry Walker with one in the third and hit a solo shot off Arnie Portocarrero in the fifth. Then in the sixth he belted a two-run homer off Portocarrero and hit another solo homer off Ernie Johnson in the ninth.

Yankees Win Again

The New York Yankees scored their 11th victory in 13 games when they rallied for four runs in the seventh inning to beat the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4 in a day game.

Art Ditmar was credited with his fourth victory although he had to be replaced by rookie Jim Bronstad in the ninth.

Ditmar added loser Bud Daley were locked in a 2-2 tie when the Yanks broke the game open with their four-run rally in the seventh. The tie-breaking run came across when one of Daley's truckers got away from catcher Frank House and rolled almost to the screen.

Elston Howard then drove in two more runs with double. The Detroit Tigers outlasted the Boston Red Sox, 10-9, to remain in a fourth-place tie with the Yankees.

Trailing 6-2, the Tigers rallied for five runs in the seventh to go ahead, but they needed two more runs in the eighth—and got them—Larry Osborne homered and Al Kaline singled home Harvey Kuenn from second base.

Gary Geiger hit a two-run homer for Boston in the bottom of the eighth off Rookie Barney Schultz, and Dave Sisler had to come in against his former teammates in the same frame to save the victory for reliever Tom Morgan. Mike Fornieles was the loser.

National League

In National League games, Bob Purkey conquered an old jinx today by pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Then lean right-hander, who had not beaten the Cubs in two seasons, was forced to leave in the eighth inning because of a blister on his finger. But he yielded only four hits before his departure and gained his sixth win of the season.

Rookie reliever Orland Penna retired the Cubs in the eighth after Purkey issued a lead-off walk. But Penna was rapped for a two-run homer by Ernie Banks in the ninth.

Three of the four hits off Purkey were extra base blows. Bobby Thomson belted a double in the second inning and Al Dark also got a two-bagger in the fourth. Sam Taylor's home run, after a single, by George Altman in the fifth, accounted for the first two Chicago runs.

Roy McMillan hit his eighth homer for a single Cincinnati run in the eighth, and Frank Robinson belted a homer into the center field fences in the ninth.

Cricket Is One Of Britain's Greatest Gifts To The World

Bromley, June 10.

Mr Harold Macmillan, believes that history might judge cricket as one of Britain's greatest gifts to the world.

Speaking in his constituency, at Bromley Cricket Club fête, he said: "I sometimes see in newspapers that cricket is written off as a dying game. I would not worry too much about that, because all kinds of strange things are written in newspapers."

"Cricket," Mr Macmillan continued, "has become something more than just a game. It is associated with the national way of life, and we have not selfishly kept this for ourselves."

"We have exported the white flannels and the coloured caps to every corner of the globe."

MUCH TO RECORD

"When the time comes for the historian to assess the British contribution to the world, we have much to record on the credit side."

"Perhaps he will decide our two greatest gifts have been the 'speaker's' wig and mace—symbols of free parliamentary democracy—and the umpire's white coat and ball and stumps—symbols of true sportsmanship at its highest."

Continuing Our Series On Some Of Boxing's Most Gory Fights Blood On The Canvas

BATTERED, HE KNOCKED OUT ZULU WARRIOR IN THE FOURTEENTH ROUND

By HAROLD MAYES

Peter Keenan, former British and British Empire bantamweight champion, of Glasgow, Scotland, reached the end of the trail a while back.

But however long his feats are talked about, I'll gamble that the one fight which will always stand high above all the others in memory is the one in which he knocked out Jake Tuli in Glasgow's Cathkin Park in September, 1955, in defence of his Empire crown.

PETER KEENAN

Blood on the canvas? That cold, wet, dreary evening on that Scottish football ground, the canvas was stained with it. And no one, but the most partisan Keenan supporter, and an optimistic one at that, would have given the curly-topped, cocky Keenan the remotest chance of victory after the first round.

Cherubic Figure

The little Zulu, a cherubic figure who, out of the ring, looked like a cuddly black doll anyone would like to drop into a child's cot for a plaything, breathed fire and destruction in that opening three minutes and turned Keenan into a poor imitation of a rubber ball.

Bang went the champion as Tuli's hooks poured in, down for counts of three, eight and three almost before he realised that the contest had even started.

What a beginning to a bout which, by all normal considerations, Keenan should not have been in at all. Nine days earlier he had cut an eye in training, and it had had to be stitched. Nothing new to the Scot, who almost needed to carry in his kithing a sewing machine.

But nine days isn't long enough for a cut of that kind to heal, even if no one is going to toss punches in its direction.

Secret Out

And how Tuli tossed them. As his little bombs of fists pounded into a man who had already had one battle that day (to beat the scales because his training had been interrupted) the gambling men would have given you any odds you liked about Keenan had you been foolish enough to want to back him.

And they would have lengthened those odds still further in the second round when that training wound was re-opened, and the well-kept secret was out.

By the fifth round the ring-siders, buddled together to try to keep out the cold, were forgetting their own discomfort as they marvelled at how Keenan was still standing up. But, remarkably, the Scot pressed on, and from the half-way stage of the scheduled 15-round battle, began to take charge.

Tuli's power was waning, principally because of the strength-sapping effect of the punches he had thrown. However tired he might be, though, surely Keenan must be in even worse shape after that early pounding. As you watched, you knew that one of them had to break, but somehow, it didn't seem likely to be Tuli.

That feeling was accentuated in the ninth round, when a cut on the nose added to Keenan's already seemingly insuperable difficulties.

Dramatic Ending

Tuli was a long way from being unscathed. Keenan's left hand, landing flush on the mouth, had made it little more than a crimson smear, and Tuli had lumps under both eyes. But still this pair of black and white terriers fought as if their lives depended on the last bone in the world.

By the 12th it was Tuli who was in arrears, and everyone was beginning to sense the possibility of a dramatic ending, for it seemed as though if either of them went down he could not possibly have the strength to rise again. Tuli somehow found some reserves. There might have been desperation in that 12th-round assault he launched, but once more he swung the fight his way when he cut Keenan's other eye.

Three severe cuts, three knock-downs—how could Keenan pull it out of the fire? It didn't seem humanly possible, but it WAS possible, and in the 14th a Keenan left hook spread-eagled the little coloured man for the full count.

Oh, what a fight! It must surely rank among the greatest in the British lists in the post-war years.

Took All Corners

Man and boy, Peter Keenan had been engaging for more than ten years in affairs which would not have disgraced the performers in some of the more glamorous divisions.

He fought championship bouts at every level from Scottish to World and never hesitated to go up or down the scale: as the occasion demanded.

He never flunked the defence of a title, and the only reason he did not win three Lonsdale Belts as his own property, instead of two, was because the British Boxing Board of Control did not always regard as real contenders some of the men against whom he staked his British crown.

Blood on the canvas? Well, in his fighting epic Peter Keenan spilled plenty. But never to greater effect than the night he hammered Jake Tuli to Cathkin, defeat.

I Look Back As Mickey Mouse Turns 30 Years Old

I travelled up from Singapore with Mr Roy Disney. He was on his way to Hongkong from the UK where he had been attending the mammoth celebrations which accompanied the 30th birthday of Mickey Mouse.

It was too hot to talk business, but Mickey Mouse and the early Silly Symphonies were something I could talk about for hours, and Roy, ever sceptical, began to cross-question me.

By the time he had finished he found I said no more than I meant.

I am one of the earliest Disney fans. I remember how it began.

In those days you used to get your money's worth. A seat in the Dress Circle for 2/-, a News Reel, a second feature, an organ solo, a stage turn, and then the main picture.

But on this occasion, sandwiched between the stage turn and the first feature was a cartoon.

In black and white, with a squeaky little voice, the sound like an old tin horned gramophone, there came a cocky-wise-cracking little mouse.

As this mouse pushed his diminutive weight around, the audience roared with laughter.

Set a Herculean task, the mouse wriggled through his difficulties.

It stole the show from every other film that was on. Everyone talked of Mickey Mouse, and so famous did he become that later, when you spoke of Mickey, everyone knew you meant Mickey, not Roycey.

The film that introduced Mickey Mouse was Steamboat Willie.

"Paganini" Mickey did everything. One cartoon had him as a kind of Paganini, fiddling away and dissolving in tears at his own skill.

A tremendous crowd pleaser was "Farmyard Concert" in which Mickey conducted the orchestra whose members were all comical animals.

One incident I can remember roaring at. They were playing "Pomp and Circumstance" and the trumpet was played by a rather stupid looking bull.

The bull would insist on playing a note that was not in the score. Mickey tapped his foot with temper, stopped the orchestra, and then started them off again.

Again the bull played the wrong note and then looked up nervously at Mickey who by now was in a murderous rage.

Mickey stepped down to look at the sheet of music, tapped it, and a fly flew off the music.

Silly? Maybe, but how the audience roared.

About five years later, and the cartoons were coming in colour. A Mickey Mouse in the programme was a must. In fact, if the main film was weak, often the cartoon would make up the strength of the programme.

The Duck Mickey was again conducting the band, this time in a park. They were playing the Overture from William Tell.

Going around the bandstand selling laces was a duck dressed in a sailor suit.

The band had just reached the March theme, when suddenly the duck pulled a flute from his sleeve and introduced a few notes of a hornpipe.

They synchronised perfectly, and all the audience were delighted. Mickey wasn't. He went into one of his black rages; he threatened the duck but directly the band repeated the theme, the duck took his flute and pulled his variations.

Mickey's little just hope well been in a rage, for the use of the introduction of Donald Duck, soon to overtake and take over from Mickey Mouse.

Wait Disney had no idea what was happening when he introduced Donald Duck. A seat in the Dress Circle for 2/-, a News Reel, a second feature, an organ solo, a stage turn, and then the main picture.

But on this occasion, sandwiched between the stage turn and the first feature was a cartoon.

The Iron Curtain Isn't Stopping American Tourists

Curtain or no, Americans are thronging into Russia with cameras, guide books and drip-dry nylon travel shirts.

Before Stalin's death in 1953, an American tourist in the Soviet Union was a rarity. But under the more liberal Khrushchev, Russia has flung open its doors.

This season it has become a full-fledged tourist target for an army of summer souvenir-hunters from the U.S.

Last year 5,000 Americans visited the Soviet Union. This year the estimate by travel agencies is 15,000—three times that of 1957.

Already in Moscow is the advance wave of early visitors who want to get their colour photo slides back home on the projection machine before the neighbours do.

We, "resident" correspondents who were looked upon as rarities during the winter are being upstaged on the streets by freer Americans with shorter skirts, brighter lipstick and swooper tail fins.

Three types of Americans are starting at the cold corridors of the Kremlin walls these days.

But there's such a travel boom that already the USSR is losing its exclusivity.

One American tourist couple complained the other day there were four other American couples on the plane they took to Leningrad.

What's more, five couples discovered they were all from Los Angeles.—UPI.

Next come delegations on the cultural exchange circuit. A group of American educators just left after inspecting schools.

Two pretty journalist-schoolteachers who won a trip to Moscow in a journalism contest, are being swarmed by a news-pager survey with even a movie camera and tape recorder, unheard of in the silent, restricted days.

Forty-six Floridians descended on Moscow on a goodwill tour, astonishing Muscovites with southern accents.

Some U.S. computer specialists have arrived to inspect computers and cryptanalysts to inspect crystals. U.S. air experts attended an aeronautical conference.

The latest: a wrestling team and antibiotic specialists to look into Russian muscles and antibodies.

In April, Russians turned on the hospitality for American doctors, war veterans and economists.

Even politicians are buying tickets eastward, Moscow trip seems to help collect votes back home.

Complaint The "Holiday on Ice" revue spread American accents during its two-month engagement in Moscow.

A dozen Americans are building the American exhibition in Moscow: when that opens in July there'll be an influx of 80 guides from the U.S.

What the effect of all these crew cuts and chewing gum have on the heretofore isolated Russians, only time will tell.

But there's such a travel boom that already the USSR is losing its exclusivity.

JAPAN NEWSLETTER By David Gordon

Poor Interest In Poll Upsets Election Forecasts

Tokyo. More than 20,000,000 Japanese voters failed to go to the polls for the Upper House elections, and as a consequence of this indifference, all calculations as to the results, were upset.

Both the Liberal-Democratic Party and the Socialists major gains at the expense of minor party candidates, while independents and new semi-religious party also fared well—the latter getting all six candidates elected.

The Ryokufukai which was originally organized by a group of elder statesmen and others who claimed impartiality, was virtually wiped out.

Four years ago it was a definite "third force" with 78 seats. Today it has 11 only.

The Socialists, by virtue of their small gains, now hold a comfortable one-third of the seats, thus assuring that they can block on their own if needs be—any move to revise the Constitution.

The planned revision would more or less give Japan a military establishment again.

Mosaburo Suzuki, chairman of the Socialist Party, recuperating from a helicopter crash while campaigning, admitted that the party's gains are not enough, but its tactics were faulty and lacked general appeal.

For that matter, the Liberal-Democrats offered nothing of substantial appeal either, hence the fact of a turnout of barely more than half the eligible voters.

On Friday afternoon, Tokyo police made a six-hour "crack-down" as they term it.

As a result, 1,034 drivers were given tickets or arrested.

Of these, 220 were for speeding, 75 for having no licences and 87 for drunken driving.

This must constitute some sort of record, though not a very praiseworthy one.

Traffic casualties for the first three months of this year have reached the startling toll of 30,357.

Deaths were counted at 2,149, but this figure is illusory as only those dead on the scene are counted.

If a victim dies on the way to the hospital or within some days as a result of his injuries, he does not count on the death side of the statistics.

A new menace has arisen in the form of cheap and tiny transistor radio sets.

Taxi, truck and trimobile drivers may be found in a misery by trains and restaurants in a pocket or hanging from a hook and the plastic lead from the speaker plugged in the ear.

Pedestrians—particularly young people—also use them while walking in the streets.

Each user, exercising his "human rights"—selects his favourite station among the hundreds available and as it is difficult to eat with the earplug lead in the way, the set is put on the table and allows to blare away for the owner's enjoyment.

As every bar and eating place has a television set going full blast too, the din is insupportable to all but the hardest.

The little "civil war" lasted several hours before police broke it up and carried the casualties to hospital and corpses to the morgue.

The National Railway Workers Union attempted to prevent survivors from looking over one of the company's coal mines to assess it for sale to a private company.

A fracas took place, resulting in 103 unionists being injured—with a woman picket dying of heart failure—and 80 police being rendered hors de combat.

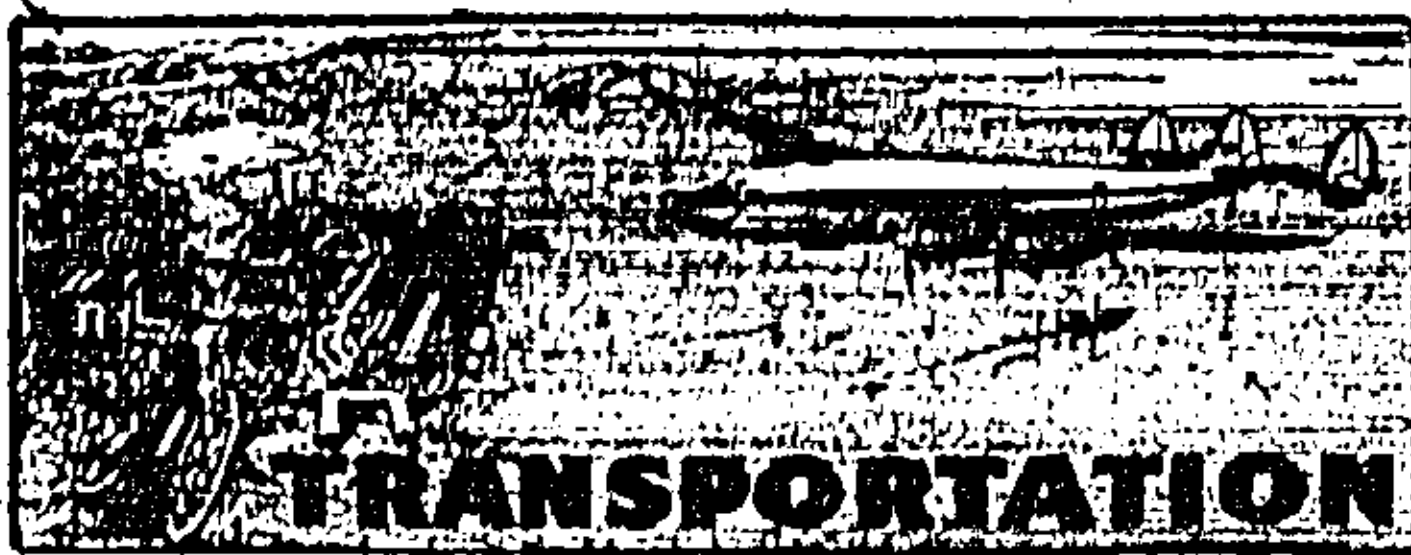

"The company's dormitory is a quite common one in Japan. Disgruntled workers often seize company property and so far as to throw the management out altogether, then sit and hold the fort until hurried from the battlements by a body of mercenaries recruited for the assault.

And no holds are barred either. Baseball bats and samurai swords are the favourite armaments, with carpenter's mallets coming in a close third.

In the instance of a "private" affair such as outlined, the police usually make a few token arrests and hold the captives for a day

TRANSPORTATION

Made For Trading

To Great Lakes

A SPECIALISED cargo vessel, the Santona, 2,500 tons d.w., has been launched from the Aberdeen yard of Hail, Russell and Co. Ltd. She has been constructed with the object of trading to the Great Lakes via the St. Lawrence Seaway, and has several items of special interest.

These include a recessed stern anchor disposal system; special navigation and pilot lights for Great Lakes sailing; and landing booms for transferring seamen ashore for Lock Service.

The Santona, ordered by The Dominion Line, Ltd., Glasgow, is a general cargo, open shelter-deck motor vessel measuring 270 ft length between perpendiculars, with a breadth moulded of 44 ft 6 ins, a depth moulded to the upper deck of 18 ft and to the shelter deck of 26 ft. With the deadweight of 2,500 tons she has a draught of about 17 ft 10 ins.

THREE HOLDS
In appearance, as will be seen, she is attractively modern, with the main and auxiliary machinery, and all the accommodation at the aft end of the ship, a raking stern, there are three holds and one between the deck, the hatches to the holds measuring 25 ft x 10 ft 6 ins, 42 ft 9 ins x 10 ft 6 ins and 29 ft 3 ins x 10 ft 6 ins are fitted with steel-pontoon covers. A notable feature for a ship of this size and type is the fitting of winches on houses round the fore and mainmasts with special winch caps for the operators. Large mushroom type ventilators are housed on either side of the mast. No. 1 hatch is served by two 5-ton derricks; No. 2 by two 5-ton at the forward end and two 7-ton at the aft end, whilst No. 3 hatch has two 5-ton derricks at the forward end and two 7-ton at the aft end.

Water ballast is carried in the double bottom and in the fore and aft peak tanks. Fuel oil is carried in a cross bunker forward of the engine room and in Nos. 2 and 3 double bottom. M.F.B. propulsion is by means of a 5-cylinder, British Polar, single-acting, 2-cycle trunk piston engine developing 2,000 b.h.p. in service. Electricity is supplied by two 125 K.W., 220 volt diesel driven generators and one of the same voltage at 60 kilowatts. These latter are arranged in the motor room forward of the main engine.

QUARTERS
In a bridge deckhouse are the engineers' quarters, the port side with a comfortable dining saloon and lounge on the starboard side. Deck officers are on the bridge deck with Captain and Chief Officer's quarters at the forward end. Wheelhouse, chartroom, pilot's cabin and radio equipment is on the boat deck with the funnel casing built in to the aft end of the house. Navigational equipment is complete, including radar, gyro compass, radio sounder, the usual radio telephony, direction finder and a Decca navigator.

In addition to being specially equipped for the Great Lakes trade, the Santona will be useful in other trades where medium size allows a large latitude in the number of ports visited. She is one of the first ships of this size built for her owners and will be active in Great Lakes trading in the present season, and have a service speed of about 12 knots.

A sistership, Colina, is also on order for the same owners and the same trade.

Computes Take-Off Weight In Seconds

AN exhibit at the B.I.F. Lisbon, recently saw the Zebra electronic computer, a machine now in service in Britain and abroad.

Demonstrations included a flight analysis showing how the computer, in the space of a few minutes, can solve complex operating problems which are virtually impossible to solve by orthodox calculation, as these would involve several days work for each result.

The problem is to compute the take-off weight of an aircraft so that its weight on arrival at destination lies within rigidly prescribed limits.

Making allowances for wide variations in range and wind speed (distance of 300-3,000 nautical miles, and wind speeds from minus 120 to plus 110 knots), Zebra will print out the answers at the rate of 30 seconds per step, giving route distances in nautical miles, take-off weight, fuel consumption in pounds, and flight time in minutes. A range of distances for each of a range of wind speeds is covered.

Tanker Takes Wine

From Chile To France

FRENCH wine crop failures in recent years resulted in an acute shortage of ordinary wine in France.

Arrangements were made to import two and a quarter million gallons of wine from Chile and the oil tanker Charlton Venus, which discharged petrol in Hongkong recently, was chartered to make the shipment.

The problem of storage was not confined to anti-corrosive protection; it was imperative that neither taste, taint, nor smell should be imparted to the cargo.

British Paints Limited were able to give this assurance in respect of their 'EpiLux 4' coatings and the work of cleaning and preparing the surface of the tanks of Charlton Venus and applying the EpiLux 4 system commenced at Rotterdam.

The EpiLux 4 anti-corrosive system is one of the most promising developments of recent years. As a protective coating for the internal surfaces of cargo tanks it offers a degree of durability far exceeding that of any other coating.

A time clause in the agreement made it impossible to complete the tanks before sailing date so an entire team of contractor's men, together with their equipment was put aboard. During the voyage it was discovered that insufficient EpiLux 4 was carried to complete the job.

British Paints Limited were advised, and they immediately advised full instructions to their Trinidad factory who arranged for manufacture of the balance of the materials required.

This was flown to Curacao where the Charlton Venus was to bunker. Final painting was completed in good time before she reached San Antonio to take aboard the first consignment of wine.

Thus the largest wine shipment ever to be imported into Europe was successfully accomplished. The wine was declared by experts at Rouen to be quite free from taste, taint and smell; the tanks were not affected by the wine.

Milford Haven May Become Atomic Port
MILFORD Haven, the South Wales port now being developed, may become the European terminal for giant, British-built atomic-powered submarines bringing Canadian oil and iron ore under the Arctic ice to world markets.

Announcing plans for the first atomic-powered cargo submarine, the British Mitchell Engineering Group said Milford Haven, now being developed to take giant tankers and their cargo, might be the European terminal for this atomic freight traffic.

Large-scale plans being carried out will transform the port, in an industrially depressed area, into one of the busiest and best equipped sea ports in Europe.

THE JETTIES
Jetties to take the largest tankers about are being constructed to feed an oil refinery on the shores of The Haven, planned to be in production by the end of 1960.

Another jetty is planned for the largest ore carriers.

Mr E. B. N. Mitchell, one of the Mitchell Group's Directors, visited Canada last month to sound Canadian reaction to the plan for atomic-powered submarines.

The first working model of the submarine had been dubbed Moby Dick, Mr Mitchell said, and the whole-shaped vessel it produced in large numbers could be built for about £5,400,000.

"We are definitely going ahead with production," he said.

London Freight Market
LONDON, June 10. Eastern markets were much more active today. The Treiltsch fixed with 5,600 tons of sugar in bulk ex-bags Australia to the U.K. for August/September at 85/- compared with 87/6 last paid. An 8,100 tons cargo of iron and/or steel products was booked from Durban to New York, Baltimore or Philadelphia at the lump sum rate of $52,500 for July position, but charterers were open again to repeat this business.—U.P.I.

Take-Over Bid Controversy Rages In UK

By RONALD BOXALL

London, June 10.

Once again the controversy rages over the merits and demerits of take-over bids. And once again it is the anti-capitalists who are the most vigorous in condemning the practice even though they may be unwittingly advocating the scrutiny of tenure for inefficient managements.

Thus we have a paradoxical situation in which "the capitalist press" defends—or at least justifies—the principle of the take-over bid, while the opponents of "high finance" attack it.

City gents commuting from one desirable suburb read in the Financial Times that "in the end the important rule is that no board has an inherent right to control a business if it does not own it."

And that Mrs Barbara Castle, a left-on-centre Socialist, advocates a policy that would have the effect of leaving inefficient directors in control by making the nation's businesses so unattractive that no bidder in his right senses would want them.

"We have a policy to tax capital gains which come so easily to those who own," she said. The next Labour Government would do its best to spoil the look of the ever-increasing profits.

It is no wonder when statements like these are made, that people who do not pretend to be experts gain the impression that there is something disreputable about take-over bids as such.

So long as a company is owned by its shareholders and its shares are valued in the open market by reference to its performance as a profit-making concern, it is open to anyone to offer to buy shares if he thinks the company's assets are undervalued and he can make a better job of extracting profits from them than the present directors.

They see no reason to suppose that a group whose interests include the selling of shoes, manufacture of hosiery machinery, mining plant, laundry equipment and ships can make a better job of running Watney Mann's four breweries and 3,670 taverns.—London Express Service.

25 years AGO

THE suggestion that the public be invited to contribute some ideas on the subject of housing and town planning in the Colony was voiced by Rotarian P. S. Cassidy, in the course of a Rotary talk.

Referring to the Wanchai Reclamation Scheme, Mr Cassidy said he thought the project might have been carried out with more regard to the needs of the people living there and, although land values were high, space for a couple of playgrounds could have been found by economising on the roads.

"We consider that Madame Alves - Guerra committed suicide by shooting herself through the head while in a normal state of mind." This verdict was returned yesterday by the special jury, Messrs W. E. Orchard, H. Keller and Yu Tse-shui at the conclusion of the inquiry into the death of Madame R. G. Alves-Guerra, wife of the Portuguese Consul-General in Hongkong.

Injuries which at first were thought to be fairly serious were received by Mr E. B. Reid of 164 Government Quarters, the Peak, when a motor car in which he was travelling collided with the bank in Stubbs Road. Mr Reid apparently struck his face against the windscreen as he received severe injuries to his jaw.

THE most serious outbreak of rabies that has occurred in the Colony for many years, has now spread from the New Territories to the more thickly populated mainland suburbs. The Police have issued a warning to avoid all strange dogs.

Since January there have been two cases of hydrophobia in human beings, the most recent being that of a small five-year-old girl, Tsang Sai-kwan, who was bitten in Ting Kau village in the New Territories. Two children are at present in Kowloon Hospital, undergoing rabies treatment. Over a dozen confirmed cases of dog rabies have been notified apart from numerous doubtful cases in the villages where the inhabitants kill off suspected dogs at once.

Hawaii Senator To Study Tourism

Hongkong can expect a great increase in the development of tourism if the people and the Government want that, said Mr Herbert Lee, Speaker of the Hawaii Senate, on arrival in the ss President Wilson this morning.

Senator Lee, a Chinese-American, his wife Irene, also Chinese-American and two sons, Herbert, Jr and Gordon are on a round trip cruise to the East to "let them see a bit of China and the Orient."

Senator Lee, who is the founder of tourism in Hawaii, said that 200,000 tourists are estimated to visit Hawaii this year.

The Senator hopes to meet local residents connected with tourist industry during his five days' stay here.

Senator Lee's family will resume the cruise in the ship to Japan tomorrow. He will join them in Tokyo later.

Tourists Here

A group of 50 tourists, led by Mr Leo Mathews, a travel expert, arrived from Japan in the ss President Wilson this morning on a two-and-a-half-month spring visit to the Orient and Southeast Asia.

PIANIST RETURNS FROM U.S.

Miss Ruby Woo, Hongkong pianist, returned in the ss President Wilson this morning from the United States after advanced studies in music there.

She had given piano recitals over Radio Hongkong before she left for the United States.

Five Drowned In Week

Five Hongkong citizens have been drowned on the beaches during the last week.

Comparative figures show that in the year ending March 1957 there were three beach fatalities; three more in the year ending March 1958 and two drownings up until March 1959.

But in the two and a half months of this year there have been five deaths. During these three years 57 Colony life guards have rescued an average of 80 bathers a year. "Most of these cases," said an Urban Council spokesman, "occurred when swimmers went beyond the buoys which mark the safety limits. Very often they are not missed until their bodies are washed ashore several days later."

A serious Urban Council worry at the moment is the person who goes boating with little, if any, knowledge of seamanship.

The Council strongly urges boaters to stay close to the shore if they know nothing about handling a boat or else make sure they are with people who have had boating experience.

Man Who Caused Dog Suffering, Bound Over

Lam Wah, 50, was found guilty of causing unnecessary suffering to a brown chow dog and was bound over in the sum of $100 for one year by Mr T. L. Yang at Central Magistracy this morning.

Mrs Y. L. Tattersall testified that she first saw the dog in front of the Chi Shun Hong Furniture Factory about three months ago. The dog was very thin then.

About three weeks ago she noticed that the dog was suffering from severe skin disease and made arrangements with Inspector T. T. Kee to see the owner of the dog.

When defendant was asked if the dog belonged to him, he replied "No." He then shut the door of the furniture shop. The case was later reported to the police.

Inspector Kee testified that the dog was suffering from mange and torn paws.

The defendant said that the dog did not belong to him. The dog was very friendly with him because he often gave him food.

The Magistrate ordered the dog to be destroyed.

The Governor Meets Artist

During a tour of three social welfare centres in Kowloon this morning, His Excellency the Governor, Sir Robert Black met the ten-year-old deaf boy, Lee Man-sung, who recently won first prize in an international painting competition.

Lee, who went to England last month to receive his prize, painted a rural scene similar to the one which won him first prize in the competition, while the Governor watched over his shoulder.

Sir Robert was visiting the Hongkong School for the Deaf at Diamond Hill where he saw demonstrations of lip-reading, voice production and hand work.

Cantonese — By Lip

Mrs Li Luk-wah, the principal, met the Governor and introduced him to the assistants who have trained to use oral methods with emphasis on lip reading in the Cantonese language.

Later Sir Robert visited the Queen Elizabeth II Youth Centre in Mongkok, where he met Mr O. H. Sadleir, Chairman of the Children's Playground Association and the Secretary, Mrs A. H. Kramers.

He toured the various centres and departments in the building visiting the Boys' and Girls' Clubs premises, the Hongkong Family Welfare Society, the College Club and the Social Welfare Department.

Allied Dividend

The directors of Allied Investors Corporation Ltd have decided to recommend a dividend of 25 cents a share for the year to March 31, 1959, it was announced this morning.

Five Lads Hurt

Five boys were injured in traffic accidents on both sides of the harbour yesterday. All were admitted to hospital for treatment.
